EOS.Web Express Selected by Dynamics Research Corporation

Training Resource Center makes use of the EOS.Web OPAC to make research and training materials available company-wide.

(Carlsbad, CA – October 26, 2005) Market leader EOS International announces that Dynamics Research Corporation (DRC), a publicly held company with headquarters in Andover, Massachusetts, has selected EOS.Web Express in order to provide employees located throughout the United States rapid access to DRC's diverse library collection and training resource materials.

The easily customizable EOS.Web OPAC will enable DRC employees nationwide to gain access, search and explore their Training Resource Center library collections from remote sites, and offers a variety of search methods for both staff and end-users. With EOS.Web Opac DRC employees will be able to remotely:

- Search their library's catalog
- Retrieve and display an image
- Retrieve sound or video files linked to a bibliographic record
- Determine the location and status information for any item
- Place a hold for a particular title
- Browse and search other Internet resources
- Search the catalogs of other libraries, regardless of their location

DRC's primary mission is to deliver solutions and services to federal, state, and local government. DRC has over 30 offices and business sites located in close proximity to DRC's customers throughout the United States.
