EOS International Announces One of Several Community Connection Programs, “Museum Connect”

(Carlsbad, CA – August 15, 2011) EOS International, a leader in cloud computing library automation, announced a new community connection program, “Museum Connect”. The EOS.Web Museum-Connect Program allows museums, historical societies, botanical gardens, archives and other organizations to share library records, information, knowledge, ideas and easily collaborate with similar organizations. The EOS.Web Museum-Connect Program can create for EOS.Web clients a secure, sociable community of libraries with similar interests, issues and goals.

The EOS.Web Museum-Connect Program is based on EOS’s flagship software platform EOS.Web which uses a cloud computing hosted environment. EOS.Web was the first, fully Web-based, MARC 21 library solution to be built on Microsoft’s .Net technology and the SQL relational database.

The EOS.Web Museum-Connect Program is available to all EOS.Web clients at no additional charge. When you participate in the program, you immediately have access to other museums and similar organizations worldwide.

“The EOS.Web Museum-Connect Program will provide EOS.Web users with additional tools to increase productivity, reduce costs and facilitate community networking”, says Sal Provenza, Vice President of Global Sales and Marketing.

Currently EOS.Web is used by the Museum of London, San Diego Air & Space Museum, Denver Museum of Nature & Science, The McNay Art Museum Library, Seattle Art Museum Library, Allen County Museum, and many more!
